Please join me in making an impact over the holidays by supporting @PeoplesEmergencyCenter. Yasmine, a mother who resided at PEC, says “I’m grateful for the experience I had, the people I met, the things I’ve learned, and the things I’ve taught myself. And then after a year, I was able to get my own house.” This year, 75% of families in their temporary housing found a home of their own. Click <https://donorbox.org/pec-impact> to give today!

Please join Duane Morris and Wescott to help a family like Yasmine’s today! Yasmine lived @people’s-emergency-center for a year with her son. She says, “Looking back on it, it was the best decision I made in my life. It helped me a lot to grow mentally and physically.” It means the world to me if you join me in supporting PEC during the holidays this year. Here’s what people who access their services are saying (<https://www.pec-cares.org/mission-moment.html>) about their work. Despite the pandemic and economic downturn, they have prevented eviction for 100 families! Please consider joining us by supporting PEC. Click <https://donorbox.org/pec-impact> to give today!

This holiday I am supporting People’s Emergency Center. Why? Because of stories like Lindsay’s. Lindsay (her name has been changed to protect her privacy) is a single mom of two living in Philadelphia. She lost work due to the pandemic and received pandemic unemployment assistance for several months, which allowed her to make partial rent payments. Those benefits ended in September leaving Lindsay with no income and no ability to catch up on her growing rental debt. Lindsay’s landlord referred her to People’s Emergency Center’s rent assistance program, and within two weeks they were able to clear $1,000 of her debt (about 50%). Lindsay, who is still looking for work, is now at much lower risk of eviction and thanked PEC, saying "Thank you for your help! Your agency helped to save me and my children from being evicted from our current residence, we appreciate you guys so much!!" Please support PEC's mission at <https://donorbox.org/pec-impact> and follow them at @lancavephilly.

Hello and I hope you are all well. Thanks for checking out my post today! I want to tell you about an organization that Duane Morris and Wescott are partnering with to change the lives for families and youth experiencing homelessness and neighborhoods in Philadelphia. That group is People's Emergency Center. Last year they prevented the eviction of 100 families. Seventy-five percent of families living in their temporary housing were able to move to their own place too. Hundreds more received rental and utility assistance. Their work gives families the opportunity for a better tomorrow. That's why I am supporting PEC, and hope you will too – give today at <https://donorbox.org/pec-impact>

Internal Platforms (Slack, MS Teams, etc.) directed towards employees:

The holidays are about coming together. We believe that all of us here at Duane Morris and Wescott can come together and create the change that we want to see. That's why we're partnering with People's Emergency Center (PEC).

Why PEC? Because of stories like Lindsay's. Lindsay (her name has been changed to protect her privacy) is a single mom of two living in Philadelphia. She lost work due to the pandemic and received pandemic unemployment assistance for several months, which allowed her to make partial rent payments. Those benefits ended in September leaving Lindsay with no income and no ability to catch up on her growing rental debt. Lindsay's landlord referred her to People's Emergency Center's rent assistance program, and within two weeks they were able to clear $1,000 of her debt (about 50%). Lindsay, who is still looking for work, is now at much lower risk of eviction and thanked PEC, saying "Thank you for your help! Your agency helped to save me and my children from being evicted from our current residence, we appreciate you guys so much!!" Please support PEC's mission through the holiday drive, at <https://donorbox.org/pec-impact>, or our employee giving campaign.
